The chairmanship is of vital importance here because the big fight of the convention turns upon it. If Glass is made chairman there will be a dry plank, or, as the Administration really desires, no plank at all. If Walsh gets the place there is apt to be a pistform expression, however carefully worded, to please the liberals and to attract the wet vote.

Glass was hand picked by the Presi Glass was hand picked by the Fresh-dent because the Virginia platform ex-netly suited the Fresident's views, being mainly a eulogy of himself and inti-mating in every paragraph that the real issue was Woodrow Wilson himself. ly a balance of power when the con vention gets down to the business of mming its ticket but will make thorough use of his veto has laid its heavy on the Administration leaders. Plans for meeting this already have been suggested. One is to oppose the Ad-ministration's favorite, whoever he might with a "wet" candidate as the alfernative; then to hold this as a club over Bryan's head until, in defence of his well known "dry" principles, he casts file support in the desired direction. Only 365 dry votes are necessary to give to Bryan a com-plete masterly over the assembly, so far as the nominee is concerned, and while t is pointed out that he could not hope o nominate his own man, neither could convention nominate one to whom ryan is opposed. In answer to this e White House crowd assert that the White House crowd assert that saye no regular play would last five Bryan can control only about 150 votes minutes unless it had at least the appropriate the property of t ad will be beaten easily and thoroughly. Complications Are Multiplying. The situation now promises to become more and more complicated. The gen-eral feeling as expressed by many of the delegates not especially noted as Administration men is that they do not know whether they are aloot or on horseback.
